Foreword

THE second edition of Prominent Families is given to the public with a belief in its certain cordial reception. The 1911 book met with unqualified success. It brought to the publishers scores of complimentary letters—comments on the convenience of the make-up, the reliability of the information, the binding and letter press. It is felt that the 1912 edition will retain the high place in public favor accorded to its predecessor. The utmost care has been exercised in compiling the list which includes families of social and commercial importance in Pittsburgh and vicinity. This year the list has been greatly enlarged and many additional families added. The suburban list includes twenty towns within a radius of one hundred miles of Pittsburgh. Sewickley, McKeesport, Ben Avon and Bellevue names will be found in the Pittsburgh list.

It is believed the information is clear and concise and that but little explanation is necessary. The prefixes Miss and Mr. have been omitted in names of children under fifteen years of age. In addition to the families listed, much information of clubs—social, philanthropic and educational—etc., is given that cannot fail to add to the value of an already valued and valuable publication.

It is compiled in response to an imperative demand for a list that will meet the requirements of those in need of an exhaustive, carefully compiled series of names of social importance.

Steady, I say
You the people who spend money

Get ready now to throw a faint because you have commenced to read the ad of an undertaker, but now since we have told you our business you will do well to stay on the job.

This is all we want to say: that you can be assured of getting just as good service and paraphernalia from us as any one in the same business, and at the same time making a saving of  $\frac{1}{3}$  on the price of the casket you use.
